'Send One Dollar In an Envelope...'

Dear Ann Landers: Last Saturday night I had a date with Chuck. I've known him for a long time but it was only hello and good-bye. When he asked me to this dance I was quite surprised.

I'm not the best dancer in the world, but then neither is Chuck. When the band came out with the Basa Nova I was stumped because I'm not up on that stuff. I stumbled a little and Chuck said, "Holy Cow, will you please try to follow me?" I tried but I couldn't get the hang of it. It was pretty gruesome.

Then we passed a mirror and I saw Chuck signaling a guy in the stag line to take me off his hands. Chuck held up two fingers. In a few minutes Pety came over and cut in.

The next day I found out from Pety's sister that Chuck had paid Pety two bucks to "save his life." I'm so mad I can't see straight. What should I do?—WENDY

Dear Wendy: Send Chuck one dollar in an envelope and tell him you don't think it's fair that he should stand the total cost of the cut-in—because you were just as happy to see Pety as he was.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife's sister telephoned us four months ago in the middle of the night—as usual. She was hysterical. Her husband had come home roaring drunk and was breaking up the furniture and smashing dishes. So my wife begged me to drive over and get her sister and four children.

They've been with us ever since, in our five-room bungalow. We have five children of our own so you can imagine what the place looks like. There are kids on the floor in sleeping bags, on the back porch in a hammock, and on Army cots in the living room. The grocery bill is out of this world and the milk bill is up there with it.

The father of these kids has not sent over one dime to help out and I am sick of it. Last night I learned my sister-in-law has been having "social dates" with her husband. When I asked her about it she said they were considering going back together. I want her out of our house immediately. My wife said it
